

Since registering on the Do Not Call List, I still get some unwanted calls, but not many. Before registering I would get between 15-30 calls per day, even on weekends. On three separate occasions I received unsolicited calls after 10p.m. I am a full-time graduate student and I study at home. If I turn off my ringer, I miss important calls (from potential employers), so that is not an option. I believe that I should be protected in my home from a burdensome amount of solicitors. Additionally, many of the solicitations are recorded messages! If they want to sell me something, they can mail it to me or email it, so I can look at it when I have time rather than disturbing me at home.
